SHOWER BY THE HOUR

Carol Watereroch spends hour upon hour under the shower. Never one to allow herself to become less than immaculate, Carol has made the taking of a shower a way of life.

It's become a bit of a problem for Carol to find and keep steady employment. Very few offices maintain showers for their employees; and when she gets that urge to strip there's no stopping her. As a result Carol finds herself in some rather embarrassing situations.

It all began some years back when she was just a sweet young thing in high school. She was enrolled in a course on Health Education taught by a very impressive teacher. Carol was so taken by his teaching style, that she hung on his every word. The crux of the course concerned itself with cleanliness. Carol became convinced that at least three showers a day were needed to maintain health and happiness.

So Carol got under the shower just as her teacher had instructed her to. She was quite surprised at the difference it made, and so was her teacher. From then on, all day and all night, she took shower after shower. . . there was just no stopping her. Carol turned from an unwanted wall-flower to one of the most sought after girls at school. The years passed, and more and more guys wanted to join with her as she played her favorite pastime.

You can readily see showering agrees with her. Even if it does require a great deal of time and effort she feels that it's worth it in the long run. Her skin is always soft and moist and none of the various gentlemen who date her have complained.

SHE BEAT EACH AND EVERY MEMBER

THE KING'S QUEEN

Meet Karen Caster, the undisputed champ at chess. She's undisputed among the staff, anyway. She plays a terrifyingly quick game. More than once she has managed to check and mate her unfortunate opponent in a matter of seconds. Once she gets her fingers on those rooks and castles, one knight isn't enough; she's got to take the entire board down to the last man. With a little squeal of glee she checks and mates the king. The game is over and it's on to bigger and better things. Of course, you can have a re-match if you think you've a chance of winning. But the second time around most often proves to be more damaging than the first; so most people are content with leaving the situation as it stands.

Karen has a business of her own which affords her time to stay in shape, chess wise. She is the titular head of a group of hardware manufacture supply houses. The board of directors felt that having a woman president would increase their sale of studs and other items. Since, for the most part, the work is of the blue collar type, Karen has little to do.

From half past nine in the morning until five or so at night, she works on her chess game. She'll devise impossible situations for herself on the chess board, and spend hours determining a way to extricate herself from the problem. For variety, she often invites one of the guys in the shop to come into her private, sound proof office and play with her. Win, lose, or draw, they're sure to have a fine time with Karen. She has the ability to make a guy enjoy losing to her.

She first became enthralled with the game when her boyfriend showed her the ins and outs, and just what a stimulating time could be had on a checker-board. That was a few years back, and now Karen can just about beat the pants off anybody, expert or not. She searches day in and day out for someone of equal skill with whom to play with. There aren't very many accomplished practitioners of this crafty art, at least a few of them are under the age of fifty. Karen likes to get into a good give and take game with people her own age.

Miss Caster is the Queen around here. There wasn't a guy on our staff who didn't have his back to the wall in short order, when she started in. She beat each and every member without mercy. Then she offered to take on two at a time as a handicap. She comes on strong; this girl! Who knows? Perhaps some day we'll read of her conquests in the newspaper.

SHE'S SADDER BUT WISER NOW

JUST A HOME BODY

Bobbi Hurrunch is just a home body. No big city, bright lights, hankering horns and traffic jams for her. No sir! Just let her languish amidst dim lights, soft music, and free flowing Scotch. Then she is really in her element. Would that she could, our Bobbi would never emerge from the comfortable confines of her apartment located in the luxurious section of Los Angeles known as Watts.

Ever since her divorce last year Bobbi hasn't found it necessary to seek steady employment. What with the court awarded her in the way of alimony she is able to maintain herself in the fashion of La Grande Dame.

A typical day in the life of this sadder but wiser young divorcee begins around noon. Arising from a troubled sleep she turns on the air conditioning and dons a pink penoire. Then it's the sheer drugery of preparing her own breakfast of top sirloin steak and frozen orange juice.

That task completed she feeds herself and then laborously sets about the chore of stacking the dishes for the maid's arrival the next day. Bobbie is so poor that she just can't afford to retain a full time maid. She must make ends meet by having her in every other day.

After her meager brunch it's under the sun lamp for twenty or thirty minutes. By that time the AM-FM, Stereo, Dual Stage, Solid State, Fifty Watt, Clock Radio - Television has announced the hour of three PM and the pending arrival of the only person to stand by poor Bobbie during her term of trial: Oscar Letcher. If it weren't for Oscar Bobbie feels that she might not have been able to stand the rigors of the courtroom battle with her ex-husband. Winning her freedom by default, she was exhausted by the ordeal.

Oscar stood by her, consoled her, provided moral support, and made the proceedings as painless as possible. Bobbie feels she owes a great deal to him and should he ever need 12 her, she'll go all the way.

TRAFFIC JAM JUMPER

Fed up with freeways? Bell Aerosystems has come up with a unique method of jumping the jams during the five o'clock rush. It's called a Rocket Belt and was developed by Bell for the government as a one man fighting transport.

The power pack gets its boost from twin tanks located at the rear of the tripod landing gear. The propellant is a liquid type and is fed to the two small rocket engines which jut out from the main body. The pilot has a throttle control, one for each engine, an ignition device, and cutoff switch. The ability to control the amount of fuel each rocket receives enables the pilot to change his attitude and thereby move from side to side. By bending forward the rocket thrust is directed to the rear and the pilot goes forward. In order to reverse his direction he need only lean backward.

As of yet, the range of this little leaper is limited. Rockets use a great amount of fuel and until they come up with a more economical method of powering it would be both expensive and inefficient as a replacement for the family car. That's not to mention the noise emitted by the little monster which rather resembles a jet fighter plane in that respect.

The top speed and maximum altitude of the Rocket Belt is under security wraps, however it scoots around at speeds near twenty-five miles an hour and at heights of one hundred and fifty feet or more.

The way we see it, when and if they ever manage to mass produce them the freeways will no longer be a problem. On the other hand can you imagine what kind of damage a drunk could do with one of these?

ROCKET BELT BY BELL

SLIPS AND SHIPS

THEY GRABBED THEIR POLES AND CAUGHT A LITTLE LUNCH

The call of the sea has captured many a man's fancy. From the earliest of recorded history we find the depths have held a fascination for those courageous enough to brave its dangers. But how would you like to cast off with a cozy crew like this for a weekend on the bounding main?

These able-bodied seamen are equal to any seamen we've ever seen. They can tie your knots, run up your mainsail, and rig your jib. In fact, these naval wandlers can do just about anything, and besides, what better way to drape your decks than with hands like these? They're sure to buoy up any voyage you'd care to embark on.

Be it with a drop line or an expensive fiber glass rod, they can really fish up a frenzy. During our interview the girls grabbed some poles and caught a little fluff. Just like that! No muss, no fuss, they just threw their floats into the water and while we watched 'em bob up and down they offered us the benefit of their experience. Needless to say we were impressed; they came up with an eel and a rock cod right away.

If you have that tired, caught-in-a-rut feeling, we recommend that you climb aboard a boat like this and take yourself a cruise. You're sure to come back with fond memories of salt spray and pleasingly rolling decks.

SHE MIGHT FINGER YOUR BAGGAGE

SHY FROM CHI

Our blonde friend here comes from the South Side of the Windy City. Elaine had enough of the humid summers and the freezing winters so she struck out for the West Coast, San Fran- cisco to be specific.

North Beach is her home now and other than the omnipresent fog she finds life tolerable enough. The little community in which she resides has its peculiarities to be sure, but Elaine considers them part of her environment. Things like not being quite sure that the waitress in the coffee shop is really a girl; or if all those blood-shot eyes she sees everyday are due to the atmospheric conditions rather than the strange smelling cigarettes people smoke.

TERRIFYING

Most of us have a nodding knowledge of Bull Fighting and the corrida or arena as it is called in The United States. Films depicting the life of a matador and books either extolling or condemning the art, or sport depending on which side you take, have over the years familiarized the public with such terms as: picador, ole!, and of course, el toro.

But what of toro, the fighting bull? What kind of animals are they? Just ordinary bulls who are sent into the ring to kill or be killed? Not on your life, or the matadors life more accurately. As much care goes into the breeding and grooming of the fighting bull as time and effort are spent on the training of the matador.

One and a half tons of brazen bull bred for the ring can cost thousands of dollars, American money. That's a hell of a lot to pay for a side of beef any way you look at it. But to the millions of fans throughout the world, from Spain to South America and even in France, the brave bulls are worth every cent. In fact, if a particular bull provides the patrons of the sandy ring with a superb performance his life is spared. The animal is then used for breeding a

From the time the male calf is born until his fatefull entrance into the arena he never sees a man on foot. The matador is the first human he has ever seen who wasn't mounted on a horse. The underlying logic is that the bull will not quite understand what is confronting him (bulls have rather poor eyesight to begin with) and attack it as he would any strange animal.

The fighting bull, unless his life is spared by the fans, goes to his death without ever having a cow to call his own. The supply of bulls is kept large enough by a line of other bulls who are used for breeding only. If the rings were to depend upon only those that manage to save themselves, the business of bull fighting would soon be at an end.

The thought behind enforcing a celebate existance for the animals is that mating them lessens the killer instinct. A contented bull, like the proverbial contented cow, seldom poses much of a threat to life or limb.

GORGEOUS GRECIAN

Like an Athenian princess from the Golden Age of Greece Miss Waneatta Papps possesses that rare talent and charm of the Grecian culture. She can dance, sing, and act; as well as work with pottery and play the lyre. Her forte she feels lies in the art dramatic.

Following the instructions of the ancients she diligently applied herself to the art of Rhetoric. Not having a ready supply of stones Waneatta purchased a number of ball bearings from a hardware store with which to practice. One by one she would place a ball in her mouth and try to speak clearly. From one she soon was able to handle two, then three, and now she can be understood with as many as six balls in her mouth at the same time. That's quite an accomplishment, although just how such an oral exercise aids in enunciation we find difficult to determine.

Along with her study of the mime, Waneetta keeps 'abreast' of the latest advances in the field of art. Actually she is a skilled painter with a deft hand when it comes to abstracts and modern impressionistic representations. Many noteworthy critics have stated that her brush stroke has great depth. She feels that her stroke notwithstanding the area acting is for her, not painting.

At present she is studying the "Method" so that she'll be on top of the modern dramas as well as having a classic background.

PROFESSOR PRIDEWORTH'S NOBLE RESEARCH

Professor Jonathan Prideworth was sitting in his office when she came in — five-foot-two of ripe but innocent-looking womanhood. She stood before his desk, hesitated shyly, then murmured, "Excuse me, Professor, but you did put this advertisement in the Campus Bugle, didn't you?"

He tore his eyes off her long enough to glance at the paper. The words of the advertisement ran through his mind "Wanted — subjects for hypnosis research. Successful applicants will receive $50 for each session. Apply 3 to 6 p.m. Dr. Prideworth's office, Dept. of Sociology." And it seemed that his advertisement was about to pay off.

The girl was shifting uneasily and he suddenly realized that he had been staring fixedly at her firm, pear-shaped breasts, outlined clearly under the tight sweater. He smiled at her, cleared his throat, and said, "Sit down, Miss . . ."

"Elkins, Judy Elkins, Professor." Her voice was low and soft "Could you tell me what the job would involve?"

"Yes, my dear," he replied, launching into the speech he had prepared so carefully. "I have received a Federal grant for research into possible uses of hypnosis for solving various social problems. I will not bore you with details, but I can assure you that the work is of extreme importance. Are you interested?"

She nodded, and he continued. "Before I can accept you, however, I must determine if you are a good hypnotic subject."

Are you ready for this one? You may think you're hip to the feminine flank and beautiful breasts pictured here; but buddy you're in for quite a curve concerning this cremey cooky. Meet Jacques Strappe! That's right, Mr. Jacques Strappe!

At this point you're no doubt saying to yourself: "Come on, quit pouring cider in my ear." But it is the truth! That captivating blond didn't come out of any tube of hair cream either, she or he, rather, is a professional transvestite.

This guy makes a living as a girl, and from what we understand he does all right at it. The rage in Europe nowadays is the female impersonator and our friend here is one of the best.

Jacques Strappe has a ball putting people on. More than one guy has given up drinking for good after trying to make time with him in a bar. If anything would give a guy the shakes, a date with Jacques would turn the trick.

Just how this all got started nobody knows. We have our ideas but evidently homosexual behavior isn't a prerequisite for employment in this line. A lot of these people maintain that they are normal concerning their sexual relations, even if their social behavior is a bit queer.

Chew on this for a bit. Maybe none of you guys would do what he does for a living, but think of the hell you could raise at the YWCA or the YMCA. Well, maybe not the YMCA, they've seen just about everything, come to think of it.

What we wonder is which door she, he, or it, goes into after four or five beers at the local bar.

The girl seemed nervous, "H-how do you do that?" she asked, and seemed reassured when he stood up and came around the desk to stand in front of her. He knew that his short, round body, bald head and thick glasses usually brought out motherly feelings even in his young students. He beamed at her, his face alight.

"Believe me, my dear, there's nothing to be afraid of—just relax, sit back and relax." His voice had assumed a deep, droning quality and he saw her eyes focus on his tie clip. The ornament on the tie clip was a silver and black disc engraved with concentric circles, which produced an illusion of movement. Jonathan rocked slightly in front of the girl, his voice droning on and on in a reassuring monotone. Slowly her body relaxed, and finally her head fell forward onto her chest.

Then he moved as quickly as his short legs would allow. He locked the door, then pulled the blinds, returning finally to the chair. Bending over the girl's relaxed form, he whispered gently, "Judy — Judy, do you hear me?" She nodded slightly. "Judy," he continued, "it's bedtime. It's time for you to undress for bed. You want to strip completely tonight, Judy, because you feel like sleeping in the nude."

Judy's eyes opened sleepily and she came to her feet, yawning. She moved slowly over to the couch and reached for the bottom of her sweater. She lifted it slowly, drawing it over her head. Jonathan felt his heart beat faster as she dropped the sweater and reached for the zipper of her skirt. The skirt dropped to the floor, and Jonathan gulped noisily.

She stood revealed in peach-colored bra and panties, a black garter belt and dark seamless nylons. Then she turned her back to him and reached around to undo the garter belt. He could see the firm, rounded mounds of her buttocks outlined against the light nylon panties. The garter belt dropped to the floor and she bent over to roll the stockings down and off. The panties pulled tight and he felt a sudden throbb of excitement as the most intimate parts of her body were outlined against the filmy fabric.

She straightened up and undid the bra hooks, then moved her arms forward and down, letting the bra slip to the floor. She turned around then, and Jonathan could only sit and gape. She cupped her breasts, massaging them lightly, and the large dark nipples came to hard vibrant life. Her breasts were firm, pointing slightly upward and outward, standing proud and straight from her deeply arched chest. Her hands moved to her hips then, and there was a silky rustle as she rolled the panties down past her thighs, letting them fall to her ankles, then stepping clear of them.

She stood there, completely naked, her breasts rising and falling slightly, her smooth rounded belly moving in the rhythm of her breathing. He started to speak, but his throat was dry. He swallowed a number of times and finally croaked, "Now you are going to bed, Judy. You will dream that the man of your dreams is making love to you and you will respond completely. Do you understand?"

He held his breath until she nodded and lay back on the couch. Then his fingers were tearing at his own clothing. Minutes later, he was kneeling on the couch, facing the very heart of her passion. Her hands reached for him and he moved forward into her yielding softness. He was swallowed up in a vortex of movement and pleasure, goaded to fantastic efforts by Judy's throaty cries of pain and pleasure.

An hour later he was sitting behind the desk again and Judy was sitting facing him. Both were fully dressed, and Jonathan was sure that he had overlooked nothing. His post hypnotic suggestion, that she forget what happened and return when he asked her to, seemed to have worked perfectly.

... my dear," he was saying, "you are undoubtedly the best subject I have come across. I had planned to use two or three subjects, but I believe I may use only you."

She smiled happily and said, "Oh thank you, Professor, I can certainly use the money. And, to tell the truth, I think I like hypnosis — I feel so good now!"

Jonathan cleared his throat quickly and said, "Ah, um, yes, hypnosis sometimes has that effect on people. Now about the next session, my dear . . ."

As he finished making the arrangements for the next session, he thought that the next time he'd have to do a little research. After all, the Government should get something for their money — because he was certainly getting something for it.

Judy Elkins walked towards her apartment on legs that kept quivering with pleasure. Who would have thought that a little guy like Professor Prideworth would be such a stud? Just the memory of his frenzied thrusting started a fire in her belly. It's a shame I have to kid the old guy about his being able to hypnotize me, she thought, but I need the money if I want to finish school. And what college boy could pay fifty bucks for a roll in the hay? Oh well, she thought happily, even if he can't hypnotize me, I guess old Prideworth will get his money's worth.

GIRLS WILL BE BOYS

ON THE INCREASE
MORE MALE THAN MEN

Homosexual behavior has been on the increase ever since the end of The Second World War. Even more frightening than the upsurge of swishes is the corresponding rise of lesbianism, both among youngsters and mature, at least chronologically speaking, adults.

Mytilene activity, while occurring in most of the culture groups throughout the world, has never received the study and publicity which has been allotted to the male homosexual.

In this so called liberal age, open discussions of deviate and perverted sex acts may be found on newsstands, in the movie houses and on television. The fabric of American society seems overlayed with a constant concern for things sexual. In fact, we pride ourselves on our new found frankness. However, one taboo remains in force; lesbianism with all its accoutrements is not mentioned in Pasadena.

The gay crowd and it's colorful slang terms such as "Queen Butch, Aunte, Nelley and take it in trade" have gained popularity and even a degree of respectability in certain circles. More and more homosexuals are coming out in the open. They have jobs, money, organizations, and status. In short, they are being accepted by the people of America, who a few short years ago considered such activities a "hanging offense".

Lesbianism is a different matter. While the average layman has at least some knowledge of the queer and his love-making techniques he is at a loss to describe lesbian love play, or the reasons behind it. It may be that the nature of girl love is such a subtle thing that the average person finds it beyond him. Or more likely John Q. Citizen just hasn't run across the situation himself, nor has he discussed it extensively. It could be, also, that the male, even the "not quite male", still retains enough basic aggressiveness to justify, publicize, and propagate his sexual beliefs; while women, as a historical standard, prefer to behave in a covert manner when the matter of sex shows up.

The confusion of modern society as to the roll of woman at tests to the fact that the girls themselves are undergoing a change. If we read the signs correctly, lesbians will experience the same popularity as the male homosexuals now enjoy. More and more will be written about them, they will find themselves the subject of films, documentaries, and extensive research.

Women have been attempting to emulate and even usurp the male role in just about every area of human endeavor. They drive trucks, work as police, operate heavy machinery, and in wartime enlist in the armed forces. In Israel compulsive military training includes the female of the species. Cuba has woman soldiers. And Russia along with China uses women without regard to sex.

Here in The United States the current literature concerns itself with Monism and Matriarchal social systems. It would seem that "dykes" are pervading more and more regions and becoming blatant about their specific perversions.

Until society decides once and for all just who is who, and is supposed to do what to which, we're going to have more and more "strange" sex. ■

SHE GRABBED THE HOSE AND RAN IN THE FIRE DEPARTMENT

Now here's a girl with an unusual occupation. To look at Janice you'd never think of her as a professional snake-eater; but that's just exactly what she is: a Firewoman.

Ever since she can remember Janice has wanted to be a firefighter. All through school she insisted that someday she'd mount the cab of a big red engine and roar off to a blazing building. When she graduated from high school, and announced that she intended to major in fire fighting in college her parents put their feet down. No daughter of theirs would run a-muck hauling hoses to and from a fire, not if they had anything to say about it.

Well, they didn't and Janice moved away from home in order to pursue her profession in peace.
